Physical fitness requires a clearance in medical health as well as knowledge of conditions that may affect your ability to perform at a moderate to high physical strength and mobility level. While these conditions may not preclude you from attending and participating in classes, they will require special considerations and modifications.

Activities in Massage and Bodywork include Tai Chi like movement and crawling on hands and knees while applying pressure through the thumbs, fingers and, hands to the client's body; long stroking movements that require stretching and mobility while giving massage; demonstrating Yoga and Qi Gong postures; kneeling, squatting, standing, and holding steady postures while applying constant pressure to acupressure points and meridians on a client's body. Esthetics procedures require standing, sitting, leaning over, reaching out, and holding up client's hands or feet for extended periods of time.

Clients are clothed for bodywork and disrobed for oils work. Students with contagious illnesses involving contact will be required to wear gloves and take the appropriate safety precautions or be excluded from said activities.
